

REPAIR DUTY . . . Larry Osborn, airman, son of Mrs. Iva Worthen, 22112 Anchor Ave., helps repair a cable winder aboard the attack aircraft carrier USS Shangri-La which has just returned from a cruise to the Far East. The vessel is undergoing an overhaul at Bremerton, Wash.

FUTURE BIRDMEN . . . When Mrs. Roma Sharp asked her first and second graders at Hamilton Elementary School what they want to be when they grow up, Ralph Brink and Patrick Boal said they want to be pilots. Each member of the class drew a picture of his "future occupation" as part of studies of the community and the people who work in it.

Today's Youngster Dreams About Being a Spaceman, Survey Shows

Spacemen have replaced policemen, firemen, and cowboys at the top of the "what do I want to be" list of first and second graders.

At least that seems to be true in Mrs. Roma Sharp's class at Hamilton Elementary School. The youngsters are learning about their community and the people who work in it. As part of the work, Mrs. Sharp asked them to write and draw pictures about the kind of occupation they would like to follow.

Five of the youngsters wanted to be pilots and four wanted to be nurses. Nobody indicated an interest in being a fireman, policeman, or cowboy.

Barbara Wilkin announced that she wants to become a mother, while Craig Hansen said his ambition is to become a father. When Mrs. Sharp pointed out that he probably would have to get a job, he decided to become an office worker.

TWO GIRLS wanted to become movie stars, while single choice votes were registered for a veterinarian, dancer, clerk, pattern maker, scientist, store manager, teacher, actress, doctor, secretary, ballet dancer, and stewardess.

"Of course, children at this age change their minds rapidly, but it is interesting to see what an impression space and airplanes have made," noted Mrs. Sharp. "We used to have lots of potential policemen, firemen, and cowboys. Lots of the boys listed the same job that their fathers hold."

Rehabilitation To Be Subject At Luncheon

An informative discussion on "Vocational Rehabilitation for the Physically Handicapped" will be the subject of the Feb. 3 meeting of the Harbor Area Welfare Planning Council, Mrs. Arthur Akerson, program chairman, announced yesterday.

This program is the result of many inquiries as to the resources currently available to help the physically handicapped learn skills which will win them opportunity to become productive members of the community.

Since the major focus of this work is carried on by the State Department's Vocational Rehabilitation Service, the Council's program has as its speaker, J. O. Stanton, assistant district superintendent of the Long Beach Office of the Vocation Rehabilitation Service. Stanton will discuss the work of this agency and give the general picture of such important resources as sheltered workshops throughout the harbor area. He will indicate the problems involved in providing adequate services to hidden human potential in our physically handicapped.

The meeting which is open to the public will take place at 12 noon on Wednesday, at the San Pedro YWCA, 437 West 9th St. Reservations should be made by calling the Council's office (TErminAl 3-5227) not later than Tuesday.
